

Qualified Lawyers Transfer Test

Tuition courses

Some course providers offer tuition courses to candidates wishing to sit the Qualified Lawyers Transfer Test.

The Solicitors Regulations Authority (SRA) does not require candidates to undertake specific training before taking the test. Therefore, providers are not specifically approved by the SRA to run these courses, and the SRA does not monitor the quality of the training provision that is available. However, some candidates may benefit from attending a tuition course prior to taking the test, and those who wish to do so should contact the training providers directly for information.

The following providers are known to offer tuition courses for some or all of the heads of the test:
